

Maximizing Time at IAFP

Networking

- Meeting individuals aligned with your interests, and trade cards.
- Engage with exhibitors, poster presenters, and other attendees during breaks, and utilize meal times to meet new people and strike up conversations.
- Introduce yourself to prospective employers and check out the job board for postings.
- Register to attend the Student Luncheon and use networking opportunities at the Student PDG Booth and other receptions to build a lasting professional network.

Learning

- Download the official IAFP Annual Meeting app and create a schedule of sessions you are interested in, keeping in mind potential overlaps.
- Visit the daily poster sessions, which are grouped by main topics, to see latest research!
- Participate in roundtable sessions to interact with speakers and panelists, and engage with presenters by asking questions and having conversations.

Getting Involved

- Get involved in PDGs to gain opportunities in planning future meetings and contributing to the organization's activities.
- Attend and participate in Professional Development Groups (PDGs) on Sunday to connect with like-minded professionals and explore areas of interest.
 - Visit the silent auction and the Foundation Booth to learn how to support students, other members, and bid on your favorite item!
